March Enrichment: The Scale and Structure of the Cosmos

Nathaniel Cunningham will enlighten participants on how astronomers have figured out "How far away are things?" from the moon, Sun, & planets, to the most distant galaxies. It is a fascinating story with many layers! And how do scientists get a sense of what things are made of when they can't actually get them (or bits of them) into the lab to measure directly? Mar. 19th, 7:00 p.m., at the Wesleyan Planetarium. RSVP to Jean Timmerman: jean-timmerman@cdolinc.net

Grand Group

This past year we had many outstanding programs which included great speakers and enjoyable activities. With lots of good ideas to choose from, we'll end up with another great year.
